2015-2016 COLLOQUIUM SERIES
preseits the

L. Starling Reid Lecture
Keynote Speaker

Geoffrey Cohen
Professor of Psychology and James G. March Professor in Education and Business, Stanford University

“ Invisible but Powerful: Social Psychological Processes that Shape Inequality in School and Beyond”

My talk will discuss the way in which social psychological processes have created inequality, particularly in educational arenas, and some steps that can be taken to bring about lasting positive change.

Friday, April 15, 2016
3:30 p.m.
Jefferson Scholars Foundation
(112 Clarke Court)

Reception will be held after the talk.
(Parking enforcement to be lifted in S-6)